PAKISTAN'S POPULATION TO EXCEED 390 MILLION ON 100TH ANNIVERSARY: DR NIZAMUDDIN

LAHORE

HASSAAN AHMED

RESIDENT Population
Association of Pakistan
(PAP) and Punjab Higher Education Commission
(PHEC) Chairman Professor Dr Nizamuddin has said on Monday that the country's population will exceed 390 million by the time it is a hundred years old.

"The population bomb is still ticking in Pakistan as revealed in the recently conducted national census. It has been estimated that the population of Pakistan might exceed from 390 million in 2047, the year when we would be celebrating the 100th anniversary of the country", he said while talking to the media at Government College University (GCU) Lahore.

"The 2.4 percent growth rate of the population in Pakistan is highly alarming keeping in view the limited resources of the country. There is an urgent need to take drastic emergency measures to limit the staggering growth as this ratio is just 1.5 per cent in other parts of the world", said Dr Nizamuddin.

"The 2017 population census has brought critical issues having farreaching implications for the development of Pakistan to the forefront. Unprecedented growth rates, emerging urban poles, youth bulge and a growing elderly population are some of the many challenges that our country faces today", he observed, while adding that a three-day 18th National Population Research Conference would be held at GCU Lahore under the title of 'Population Growth and Investing in Human Resource Development' from December 20.

According to Dr Nizamuddin, Pakistan is one of the largest countries with a 'youth bulge' in the population and it is a dilemma that more than 4 million people are unemployed only in Punjab – the largest province of the country.

He further added that Pakistan did not bother to invest much on human resource development as other countries in South Asia did consider it to be a very important subject and therefore the unskilled human labour in Pakistan is the main hindrance in our economic growth. "The result of the recent census that was carried out after two decades reveals that the population of elder people is also increasing rapidly and it is really unfortunate that more than 50 million elder people in Pakistan are without any social security and any forum to express their reservations," lamented Dr Nizamuddin.

The PHEC chairman said that there must be a study centre to conduct surveys and research on the population growth in every university and urged GCU Vice Chancellor Dr Hassan Amir Shah to take an initiative in this regard.

"We know that our population is estimated to be around 400 million in next 30 years, so we have to start taking concentrated steps on all levels now instead of taking reactive measures later," said GCU VC Professor Dr Hassan Amir Shah.

He also agreed that population studies should be made a part of the curricula at all levels of education while pledging GCU's wholehearted support for the 18th National Population Research Conference.

GCU Political Science Department Chairman Professor Dr Khalid Manzoor Butt said that many models for population control such as the Chinese and Malaysian models were available but the political will to implement these models in Pakistan was missing. He said that there are pressure groups which don't allow the government to introduce radical reforms in order to control the population growth.

Bargad Organization Executive Director Sabiha Shaheen, University of Education VC Professor Dr Raufe-Azam and distinguished historian Professor Dr Tahir Kamran were also present on the occasion.

Call for measures to control population growth

By A Reporter

LAHORE: If the current pattern of growth continues, the population of the country will reach around 390m after 30 years and the drastic emergency measures are required on federal and provincial levels to counter the population growth.

This was stated by Population Association of Pakistan (PAP) President Prof Dr Muhammad Nizamuddin, who is also chairman of the Punjab Higher Education Commission, while addressing a press conference on the objectives of the 18th National Population Research Conference at Government College University (GCU) on Monday. He called for imposition of an emergency in the country to control population growth rate and to make investment in human resource development.

Mr Nizam said the Population Census 2017 had brought critical issues to the fore and it had far-reaching implications for the development of the country which was facing challenges, including unprecedented population growth rate, emerging urban polls, youth bulge and a growing elderly population.

"The natural resources are not enough to meet needs of growing population. There are 4m educated youth in Punjab and it is impossible to give jobs to all of them. We are planning to help support them by increasing number of seats of Prime Minster Internship Programme," he said and added that there were also 50m elderly people in the country and an old age policy was required for them.

Mr Nizam also announced to establish the Population Welfare Studies Centre in all the universities, starting it from the GCU.

The PHEC chairman said the census revealed that non-government organisations (NGOs) or government's population control programme were not reaching the rural areas.

GCU VC Prof Dr Hassan Amir Shah, University of Education VC Prof Raufi-Azam, Bargad Executive Director Sabiha Shaheen and GCU Political Science Department chairman Prof Dr Khalid Manzoor Butt also spoke.

Punjab Higher Education Commission Chairman Prof Dr Muhammad Nizamuddin has said there is a need for imposing an emergency in the country on population growth and investment in human resource development.

"The 2017 Population Census has brought critical issues to the forefront that has far-reaching implications for the development of Pakistan. Unprecedented growth rates, emerging urban poles, youth bulge and a growing elderly population are some of the many challenges that our country faces today," said Prof Nizam while addressing a press conference at the Government College University Lahore. Objectives of the 18th National Population Research Conference were floated on this occasion.

"If the current pattern of fertility continues, then on the 100th birthday of Pakistan, our population is estimated to be around 390 million. We require making concerted efforts now on the federal and the provincial levels in order to address these issues in a timely manner," said Prof Nizam who is also president of the Population Association of Pakistan (PAP). Prof Nizam revealed that the GCU, PHEC and PAP were holding the Population Research Conference from December 20, 2017 where all stakeholders were convened at one platform to deliberate upon all issues related to population growth and human resource development.

The PAP president said the onus of population growth could not be put on the government alone; it is rather shared. "And, I believe that universities and non-government organisations have a bigger role in creating awareness," he added. He proposed to establish the Population Welfare Studies Centre in all universities, saying that GCU must take lead in this regard.

The PHEC chairman said that average population growth rate of Pakistan was 2.4 but it was less than 2 in cities which meant that NGOs or government's population control programme were not reaching the rural areas.

GCU Vice Chancellor Prof Dr Hassan Amir Shah said that population growth should be handled proactively rather reactively. "We know that our population is estimated to be around 400 million in next 30 years, so we have to start taking concerted steps now on all levels instead of taking reactive measures later," he added. He also proposed that population studies should be part of curricula at all levels of education.

University of Education Vice Chancellor Prof Rauf-e-Azam said that population control is a sensitive issue for which we need to take all stakeholders on board to suggest pragmatic solutions.

"This conference by PAP is a right step in a right direction and its proceeding will be sent to the government and policy makers for developing a future roadmap," he concluded.

Bargad Executive Director Sabiha Shaheen believed that they could not control population growth rather initiatives must be taken to manage it now. "There is a huge youth bulge in the country which should be managed so that they could play an effective role for the development of the country instead of becoming burden on the economy," she added. She also laid stress on cultivating entrepreneurial mindset among youth.

GCU Political Science Department Chairman Prof Dr Khalid Manzoor Butt said that many models were available for population control such as Chinese and Malaysian models but there was a lack of political will in the country.

He said there were pressure groups, which don't allow the government to introduce radical reforms in this direction.

Eminent historian Prof Dr Tahir Kamran also spoke at the press conference.

Pakistan's population to be 395 million in 2047: PHEC chairman

Staff Report

LAHORE: Punjab Higher Education Commission Chairman Dr amuddin said that the country's pulation would cross the 395 million mark by 2047.

While addressing a press conference at Government College University (GCU) along with GCU Vice Chancellor Dr Hassan Ameer Shah, University of Education VC Dr Rauf i Azam and Sabiha Shaheen of Bargad Organisation, Dr Nizam said that the 2017 census had revealed that the country's population was growing at 2.4 percent and not 1.6.

He said that to counter different aspects regarding population and human resource a conference is being organized at GCU titled Population Growth and Investing in Human Resource Development which will focus on the management of Human Resource as per the population increase. He said that after 2047 there will be huge youth population in country but there will be no jobs.

"Therefore there is dire need to invest in Human Resource sector if we want to fulfill the needs of increasing population," he said. He said that research process was carried out by the academia in the world. "In our country, this is done by government institutions," he said.

"We have a history of population influencing politics since mid 1960s, but now we need to put some urgent efforts on still growing population, I mean how to respond to the unprecedented growth rates in the region, the emerging urban poles, lack of migration policies, youth bulge and changing sex ratios," he said.

He said that the conference would discuss deficiencies in addressing family planning goals and highlight what was required to fulfill international commitments. "Our population welfare programme has been devolved to provinces," he said, adding that issues including investment in youth skills to increase human capital will be discussed in the conference.

"If the current pattern of fertility continues, then on the 100th birthday of Pakistan, our population will be around 390 million. We require taking concerted efforts now on the federal and the provincial levels in order to address these issues in a timely manner," he said.
